

Starting a new business is a huge undertaking!

A surprisingly small number of investors and entrepreneurs actually follow through. Time and again, we come across startups that don't even make it out of the gate!

Why a Start-up consultant

Well, it's all down to planning, support, and advice—or rather, the lack thereof.

Whatever industry you're in, and whatever the scope of your goals, early consulting for professional startup businesses can help to ensure you avoid the mistakes of countless others. Here are some ways we can help you:

We'll give you the skills you need

We don't want to do everything for you; we're not trying to make ourselves indispensable. That doesn't mean we won't ensure you avoid the costly mistakes and critical failures that halt so many startups in their tracks; just that when you work with us, you'll learn the skills you need to progress by yourself.

Plus Minus Accountants will break the whole process down into manageable steps, eliminating the mystery that often paralyzes startup businesses. We'll also free you up to focus on other crucial elements of your business.

Whether you looking for consulting for IT start-up business, local businesses or medium companies - and whether you are contractors or freelancer, or other professional - Plus Minus are indispensable partners in getting off the ground.

Plus Minus will help you with:

- Business Plan
- Estimate and currently cash flow
- Business Strategy

We'll develop your startup business structure

One of the biggest stumbling blocks for new startups is bringing the basic concept to fruition. Offering statistical analysis and strategy planning, you can think of us consultants as an essential catalyst, transforming your bright idea into a successful enterprise. We'll help you to progress smoothly from the concept stage to structuring and starting your business for ensure long-term stability.

We'll also explain the differences between the legal structures and bank accounts open to you, and help to set them up.

We'll make valuable introductions

Having been involved in consulting for startup businesses in London for many years, we're very well connected in the city. This is good news for startups, since finding good partnerships with vendors is another key stumbling block. Many new businesses don't even have a budget that allows for a 'trial and error' approach to finding good relationships, which means one bad one can be a massive setback.

Proving it's not just what you know, we'll help you establish mutually rewarding partnerships with vendors we can vouch for.

Plus Minus - Your consultants in London

Whether you want consulting for IT startup businesses, local businesses, medium businesses, or corporations—and whether you're a contractor, freelancer, or other professional—Plus Minus are your indispensable partners in getting off the ground.

Get in touch today to learn more about our services and solutions for startups. and to discuss your needs in detail.